EIGHT HOUR LAW

Law Permits Work on Government Work for More Than Eight Hours.

Not It Is Only in Cases of Extraordinary Emergencies—Judge Advocate General Lays Down a New Doctrine in Construction of the Law.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The navy department has rendered a decision constraining the eight hour law that will be of importance to all labor interests as well as to government contractors. The commandant of the Washington navy yard recently asked authority from the department to permit the contractor, who is building the new gunships in the yard to employ his workmen ten hours per day. In support of this application it was stated that during the progress of the work the operation of the machinery was to be stopped and the floor was being damaged by exposure to rains.

The judge advocate general's department has pointed out that the law permits the employment of workmen on government works for more than eight hours per day "only in case of extraordinary emergency," and then lays down a new doctrine in the construction of this law as follows:

"Inasmuch as the conditions reported are such as must have been foreseen when the contract was made and are such as necessarily exist to a greater or less degree which favor work of the character referred to is in progress, the department is of the opinion that the case can not be regarded as one of extraordinary emergency."

"In cases of this character it would appear that if the public property can not be sufficiently protected from damage otherwise, the proper remedy would be to employ a force of men in relays by which means the work could be expedited much more effectively."

FAST MAIL TRAIN WRECKED.

Chicago & Northwestern Train Jumps the Track Killing Four and Injuring Nine—Cars Go Over a Bank.

BOONE, Ia., Aug. 2.—The fast mail train on the Chicago & Northwestern railroad, which left Chicago at 10 o'clock Monday night, jumped the track at "Kate-Shelly curve," just east of the Des Moines river bridge at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. The engine and all the cars were wrecked. The following were killed: Engineer John Masterson, Boone, Ia.; Fireman Arthur Schmidt, Boone; Postal Clerk G. G. Stone, Austin, Ill.; J. J. O'Brien, postal clerk, living in Chicago. The following were injured: Postal Clerk Fackert, Dixon, Ill.; Postal Clerk A. W. Hoyt, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Postal Clerk E. H. Shirk, McCausland, Ill.; Postal Clerk C. C. Roorick, Dixon, Ill.; Messenger Helper F. L. Figafoos, Missouri Valley, Ia.; Brakeman Thomas Flannery, Postal Clerk W. C. Lindell, of Chicago. The others on the train, Conductor Rose, Brakeman Dorman, and Bridge Foreman E. T. McVarnes, escaped unhurt.

SECRETARY ROOT INSTALLED.

Interesting Ceremonies at the War Department When He Took the Oath of Office—Alger Leaves for Home.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Mr. Elihu Root took the oath of office as secretary of war at 10:45 Tuesday. The ceremony occurred in the large office of the secretary of war in the presence of Secretaries Gage and Hitchcock, Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn, a large number of army officers in uniforms, and other employees and officials. The oath was administered by Judge Cole, of the supreme court of the District of Columbia.

It was 10:45 when Mr. Root stood up and took the oath of office. Judge Cole then addressed him as "Mr. Secretary," and shook hands and congratulated him. Gen. Alger then advanced and shook hands most cordially.

HEUREUX'S ASSASSINS.

They and Their Friends Are in the Mountainous District About 25 Miles North of Moca.

PUERTO PLATA, Aug. 2.—The assassins of President Heureux and their friends are in the mountainous district about 25 miles north of Moca. Senor Don Cordero, late minister of the interior, has taken the field against them with 400 men.

The acting president, Venecio Figueroa, in view of the anxiety of the commercial classes over the depreciated paper currency, has promised to retire much of the issue and asks that the business men be patient. It is suspected that Jimenez is in the neighborhood of Quiebras. News from Moca and Santiago indicated a calmer feeling Tuesday.

WIND AND RAIN.

Carrabelle, Fla., Reported Almost Destroyed by a Terrible Storm.

Several Persons Reported Drowned at St. Marks—Houses Destroyed at St. Teresa—The Turpentine Industry in That Section Greatly Damaged.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 3.—The town of Carrabelle, a prosperous port on the Gulf of Mexico, southwest of this city, is reported almost completely destroyed by a terrific wind and rain storm which passed through this section during Tuesday and Tuesday night. Many boats which were in the harbor have been wrecked and most of the long wharf is gone, together with large quantities of naval stores.

At Lanark, the boat houses, pavilion and boats have been destroyed. Unconfirmed reports say that the steamer Crescent City has been lost between Apalachicola and Carrabelle. Several persons are reported drowned at St. Marks. A few houses were destroyed at St. Teresa. The McIntyre, Ashmore and Curtis mills have suffered severely. A passenger train on the Carrabelle, Tallahassee & Gulf railroad, 35 miles below Tallahassee, was badly wrecked, but no one is reported killed or injured. The turpentine interests in this sections are greatly damaged and much injury has been done to crops.

The wires are down south of here and railroad service to the gulf ports is suspended. The storm was one of the hardest that ever passed over this section. It came directly up from the gulf and started northward. For hours the wind was terrific, blowing

POWELL'S BACKBONE.

He Enters Vigorous Protest Against a Newspaper Man's Arrest and the Haytian Government Accedes.

PORT AU PRINCE, Hayti, Aug. 3.—The political situation is causing anxiety. Numerous arrests have been made. Among those taken into custody are M. Doubillon, a former minister of the interior, and M. Duverrier, a newspaper man. Duverrier made strong resistance and succeeded in entering the United States legation, dragging with him the officer detailed to take him into custody. The officers, however, were unable to take their prisoner outside the legation doors. The United States minister, Mr. Wm. F. Powell, entered a protest against the action of the officers and demanded the release of the prisoner. The Haytian government gave way to the protest of Mr. Powell and M. Duverrier was set at liberty.

AN INFURIATED BULL.

Farmer Dirk Was Killed and Horribly Mangled and His Wife Badly Injured by the Beast in a Pasture.

FORT DODGE, Ia., Aug. 3.—John Dirk went out in a pasture Wednesday when he was attacked by a bull. His cries were heard by his wife, who ran to his assistance, and together they drove the animal away. As they were leaving the bull attacked them again, knocking both down.

Dirk told his wife that he was dying, and she managed to escape and summoned a neighbor, who fired two shots from a shotgun into the animal, driving it away. Dirk was killed, his body being trampled into an almost unrecognizable mass. Mrs. Dirk had two ribs crushed.

Two of Them Captured and Shot—The Authorities Continue to Make Arrests—Country Is Quiet.

SANTO DOMINGO, Aug. 3.—Two of the assassins of President Heureux have been captured and shot.

The country is entirely quiet and no movements of troops are in progress. The authorities continue to make arrests. In addition to the prominent persons before reported as having been taken into custody is M. Fouchard, formerly minister of finance.

Many refugees have sought protection at the American legation, among them M. Menos, some time minister of foreign affairs. The situation is grave.

CONGRESSMAN ROBBED.

Wm. C. Lovering, of Massachusetts, Relieved of His Pocket Book and Valuable Contents Near Brussels.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 3.—William C. Lovering, member of the United States house of representatives from Massachusetts, was robbed on Saturday last while on his way from Ostend to this city. Mr. Lovering, while in the station at Ostend, was jostled by two men, but took little notice of the occurrence at the time. On arriving in the city, however, he discovered that his pocketbook, together with $13,000 worth of valuable papers and notes for $250 sterling, had disappeared. The matter was placed in the hands of the police.

EIGHT DEATHS.

Yellow Fever at Soldiers' Home, Hampton, and Phoebus, Va.

There Are Over Forty Cases—A General Exodus From Neighborhood and Surrounding Towns—Precautions Taken at the Norfolk Naval Hospital.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—"Three new cases of yellow fever in the soldiers' home at Hampton and one death," is the official report received here Tuesday night by Surgeon General Wyman from Dr. Wasdin, the yellow fever expert on duty at the institution. Added to Dr. Wasdin's figures sent to Dr. Wyman Monday, this makes up to date 40 cases in all which have occurred at the home, of which eight have proved fatal. The opinion was expressed Tuesday night that the situation continues encouraging, inasmuch as the disease has kept within its original bounds. None of the nearby towns other than Phoebus has reported the appearance of infection or suspicious cases. The people for miles around the home are very much alarmed, but are very quiet under the circumstances.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Surgeon General Wyman during the afternoon received a message from Surgeon Viekery, of the Hampton home, thanking him for the prompt service of the marine hospital service officials and saying there was no further spread of the epidemic in the home. The messages ended:

"Two cases, one death last day."

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 3.—Yellow fever appeared Tuesday at Phoebus, a little town almost adjoining Hampton. The scourge appeared among the negroes and six cases and two deaths were reported. There is no change in the local situation except that the authorities redoubled their diligence to prevent the fever spreading to this city from Hampton or elsewhere. The mayor, chief of police and patrolmen are doing 18 hours' duty daily, and special officers, inspectors and physicians are working day and night perfecting the quarantine against Hampton and neighboring points in the peninsula.

NORFOLK, Va., Aug. 3.—The rigid quarantine measures which have been put into effect and the unanimity of the action on the part of the health authorities of the state and city have done much toward restoring confidence. It is not believed here by those in the best position to know that the yellow fever will reach Norfolk which almost paralyzed citizens and killed business when the startling news from the soldiers' home first reached here, is gradually wearing away and commerce is once more thought of. It is true that people are leaving Norfolk, but the exodus is usual and incident to the summer season. There is some little fear here, but it is due more to the consequences of the quarantine regulations than to the fever itself.

Every possible precaution is being taken. The beach for a distance of five miles is patrolled night and day, while several tugboats and steamers are constantly on the lookout for any and all craft from the infected district.

The latest information from the home Wednesday night is that there was one death and no new cases during the day. Thursday all the old veterans of the home will be lodged in tents while the entire reservation is thoroughly disinfected.

When the quarantine inspectors met the cannon ball on the Norfolk & Western road Wednesday morning they found aboard bound to Norfolk 21 passengers who could not give the satisfactory account of themselves required by the health authorities of the city. The train was held at Tuckers, about five miles out from Norfolk for two hours and finally the car containing the persons referred to was detached from the train to be sent back to Richmond.

FILIPINOS AGAIN ROUTED.

El Pardo Taken by a Company of Americans—The Charleston Shelled the Rebels as They Retreated.

MANILA, Aug. 3.—Mail advices from the Island of Cebu announce that a company of Americans last week attacked the Filipinos' trenches, situated two kilometers from the town of El Pardo. The rebels were commanded by the Brothers Climace, who are prominent and wealthy persons. The Charleston shelled the enemy, and the Filipinos retreated.

The American casualties were slight. The presence of the Climaces with the rebels is reported to have been due to rebel orders from Luzon.

Subscribed to the Dewey Fund.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 3.—United States Treasurer Roberts Wednesday received a telegram from Pittsburgh stating that the Carnegie Steel Co. had subscribed $1,000 to the Dewey home fund. The actual amount of cash so far received for this fund is $17,355.

Nominated for Governor.

DES MOINES, Ia., Aug. 3.—The republican state convention Wednesday nominated L. M. Shaw, of Denison, for governor and J. C. Milliman, of Logan, for lieutenant governor.

THAT BOYCOTT.

Gen. Axline May Use the Civil Rights Law to Break It Up.

A Man Refused Medicine at Two Drug Stores, Although He Was in a Critical Condition, Because He Had Ridden on a Big Consolidated Car.

CLEVELAND, O., July 3.—Adj. Gen. Axline said Tuesday night that he had found a way to smash the boycott as far as it affected the troops. Every day since the soldiers arrived they have been subjected to petty annoyances because of the refusal of merchants to sell them necessary supplies. Gen. Axline pointed out the other day that these merchants could be prosecuted under the civil rights law, which requires all keepers of inns, restaurants and places of public amusement and accommodation to serve all people alike. Tuesday Gen. Axline declared that if any more complaints against soldiers came to him he would appoint a judge advocate to proceed against the merchants and thus seek to bring them to time.

A prominent physician Tuesday night gave an instance of the way in which the boycott is being enforced. He says he was called to see a little girl who was dying. He was met by two men who told him he had better not attend the child as her father was a "scab." He replied that they ought to serve notice of the boycott on the Almighty and inform Him that they would not go to Heaven for the child would be there in a short time.

Monday night a man was refused medicine at two drug stores, even though he was in a critical condition, simply because he had ridden on a Big Consolidated car. The man who was boycotted says that one of the druggists who refused him medicine was recently saved by him from prosecution for damages for selling poison to be used for a criminal purpose, and that he afterward endorsed the druggist's notes for a considerable amount. He made the statement to show that the druggist was under obligations to him and should have been glad to accommodate him by filling the prescription.

CLEVELAND, O., Aug. 3.—There was practically no change in the strike situation here Wednesday. President Everett, of the Big Consolidated, declared that his company has about all the men required. Maj. J. R. McQuigg was Wednesday appointed acting judge advocate by Adj. Gen. Axline. It is understood that the acting judge advocate will at once take up the legal phase of the boycott so far as it relates to the soldiers. It is stated that Gov. Bushnell will come to Cleveland in person shortly to investigate the situation and to decide how long the troops shall be kept here.

COL. HAWKINS' REMAINS.

A Guard of Soldiers Will Be Detailed to Accompany It East—Docking of the Transport Senator.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 3.—The docking of the transport Senator Wednesday was unaccompanied by the blowing of steam sirens and the ringing of bells. The death of Col. Hawkins, of the Pennsylvania regiment, seemed to have impressed every one in an unusual manner, and along the water front flags hung at half-mast. A detachment of soldiers carried the casket containing the remains from the transport to a waiting hearse. A guard will watch it constantly and when the remains are placed on board the cars for the east a guard will be detailed to accompany it.

It has been decided that the men shall march to the barracks at the presidio Thursday under the escort of the returned Oregon, Utah and Nebraska troops.

A Possible Clew.

PERU, Ind., Aug. 3.—A story has reached this city from Brimhurst, Carroll county, that a girl supposed to have been Nellie Berger was seen at the home of Hack Allen, near Brimhurst, July 24. A girl answering the description of the missing Nellie, accompanied by a man, drove to the Allen home and begged breakfast. Then they drove west. The girl did not seem to be grieved.

Four Robbers Hold Up 500 People.

CORRY, Pa., Aug. 3.—A bold highway robbery took place in this city at 11 o'clock Tuesday night when patrons of the Pawnee Bill show were returning to their homes. Four armed men held up 500 people. The robbers had destroyed the arc light, leaving the road in darkness, and with drawn revolvers stopped the people and carriages, blocking the street until at least 500 people were held up.

Death by Lightning.

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Frank Casey, of Casey's hotel, between Blue Mountain lake and North creek, was instantly killed by lightning Wednesday and his two sisters rendered insensible.

A "HOT" COLD BANQUET.

Some Inside Information by a Waiter from the Bowery Who Helped Serve It.

One of the waiters at a popular local restaurant is a bird of passage from the Bowery and was a member of the small army that served the famous "Dollar Dinner" in New York last April. A good many stories have been told of that memorable event, but none of them surpass his own in point of picturesqueness and inside detail. "It was the funniest push I was ever in in my life," he says, confidentially. "The kitchen was so small they had to cook everything on the outside, and when it got there it was dead cold. The second course was haddock, and each fish came served in a linen bag, so we could put 'em in tubs of hot water and warm 'em up—see? Well, some of the boys got rattled and served 'em bags and all, with egg sauce over 'em outside. Say, you'd of died laughing seeing them fellers tryin' to carve their fish. This is the toughest I ever tackled in my life," says one Tammany man at the head table; "it's got a skin like a rhinoceros," says he. In the kitchen there was a riot all night long. It was so small the waiters couldn't reach the dishes—and they got to scrambling for front places in the line. One man was knocked stiff with a turkey, and when they picked him up I thought he was dead. I did, on the level. But it wasn't blood. It was only cranberry sauce. Another dunkey fell into the salad and one of the cooks put a can of ice cream in the oven, thinking it was brown gravy for the beef. That's on the square—just as I'm tellin' you! But the worst of all was when we came to the wine. It was 'Merican champagne in half pints, without ice, and of all the kicking and holering! One fresh gent told me it was the only thing he had had that night that was good and warm, and he had hardly said it when a waiter that was a little jagged accidentally poured about a quart of boiling coffee down the back of his neck. Say, you ought of heard him cuss! Between you and me, a good many waiters got to hitting the wine, and they found one of 'em with 15 empty bottles in his pants leg. That's honest. I saw it myself. It was the hottest banquet I was ever at."—N. O. Times-Democrat.

HE WAS REJECTED.

But He Stuck to His Job and by a Lucky Hit Won the Coveted Prize.

"It was such a good joke on me," said the girl in the gray velvet toque to the girl in the blue velvet shoulder cape, as they stirred their hot chocolate, "that I must tell you."

"You know how John has been proposing to me at regular intervals ever since he was out of knickerbockers. Well, he did it again the other night, and, with his usual facility, chose an occasion when I was very cross."

"He did it a little more awkwardly than usual, too, deliberately choosing the old-fashioned method of offering me his hand and heart."

Here she paused to drink some chocolate, and the girl in blue asked breathlessly what she said.

"Oh!" remarked the other, in the tone of one relating an event of no importance. "I told him that I believed I was already provided with the full quota of bodily organs, and that I wouldn't deprive him."

SAVED BY MRS. PINKHAM.

[LETTER TO MRS. PINKHAM NO. 72,896]

"You have saved my life, snatched me from the brink of the grave almost, and I wish to thank you. About eighteen months ago I was a total wreck, physically. I had been troubled with leucorrhoea for some time, but had given hardly any attention to the trouble."

"At last inflammation of the womb and ovaries resulted and then I suffered agonies, had to give up my profession (musician and piano player), was confined to my bed and life became a terrible cross. My husband summoned the best physicians, but their benefit was but temporary at best. I believe I should have contracted the morphia habit under their care, if my common sense had not intervened."

"One day my husband noticed the advertisement of your remedies and immediately bought me a full trial. Soon the pain in my ovaries was gone. I am now well, strong and robust, walk, ride a wheel, and feel like a girl in her teens. I would not be without Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it is like water of life to me. I am very gratefully and sincerely your well-wisher, and I heartily recommend your remedies. I hope some poor creature may be helped to health by reading my story."—MRS. COL. E. P. TROUBLE IN ORAIBI.

Moki Indian Village Divided Into Two Hostile Factions.

Some Are Friendly to American Civilization, Others Oppose It—Tribes Now in the Vortex of Civil War.

[Special Arizona Letter.]

A short time ago I visited Oraibi, one of the ancient towns of the Mokis in northern Arizona. While there I succeeded in photographing several of the old residents who never before would permit themselves to be pictured. An interest attaches to some of these photographs, because of the fact that the village of Oraibi is divided into two factions, one of which is called the "Friendlies," and the other the "Hostiles." A number of years ago when the United States government established its Indian school at Keam's canyon very few of the Oraibis would allow their children to go to school, and those who did were immediately subjected to bitter persecution and religious ostracism. This was the beginning of the breach which has since widened as to require several troops of soldiers, two or three hotchkiss guns, and a great deal of trouble and expense on the part of the United States government to keep from destroying the Oraibi people, and causing a bloody and disastrous war.

MOKI INDIAN TAKING HIS EASE.

HOUSE WHERE KUCHIWENTIWA HID HIMSELF AT ORAIBI.

When it was found that the "Friendlies" insisted upon sending their children to the government school those who were opposed to this called a council. It was a council such as few white men have ever been privileged to witness. I was not present at this one, but, some months later, when the situation had grown more acute still, I was fortunate enough to be present at a much more exciting council, at which all the arguments presented at the first were gone over with increased vehemence and force.

The "Friendlies" were denounced for forsaking the way of their forefathers, and warned that if they persisted in their un-Moki-like conduct they would be cast out from their fellows, compelled to abandon their homes, leave their cornfields and establish themselves afresh in some far-away country, like Mexico. The "Friendlies," feeling that the United States government would support them in the position which they had taken, refused to recede, and the result was open hostilities were immediately declared. The "Friendlies" were driven from their homes, and bands of "Hostiles" began to take possession of their cornfields, peach orchards and gardens. This could not be tolerated for a moment, so the United States Indian agent at once set off from Fort Defiance to see what could be done to harmonize the opposing factions. Next morning the council was held. The chief of the "Friendlies" was Lo-lo-la-mai, and the chief of the "Hostiles" Lo-ma-hung-yo-ma. The town plaza was filled with the men of both parties, whilst the house tops were crowded with the women and children.

Lo-lo-la-mai opened the case. In a few words he outlined the cause of the trouble, and spoke of the anger and hatred that existed between the two factions. Then referring to the threats that had been made, he asked the agent if he thought the great father at "Washington" would allow them to be driven from their homes because they had obeyed his orders and sent their children to school.

Lo-ma-hung-yo-ma, not being a good speaker, called upon Hebe-ma, the chief medicine man, to speak for him. His speech was full of fire and energy. He recounted their supposed origin, and in vivid words pictured what "those above" had done for them during the many "snows" which had past. Then turning to the "Friendlies" he passionately exclaimed: "You have left the Oraibi way. You are no longer Oraibis. So you have no right to anything that belongs to them. You must go away, or awful disaster will come upon you and upon us."

When Lo-lo-la-mai replied he showed the folly of Hebe-ma's argument that "those above" would punish with disaster those who followed the Oraibi way. Disaster would come only upon those who had forsaken the way of their forefathers and walked in a new way, and that for him and his friends, he was not afraid of what the gods could do. When these words of blasphemy were uttered Hebe-ma shouted out with force and vehemence: "You are no longer our brethren. You must go away. Unless you do we will fall upon you and thrust you from your houses and bar the trails against your return."

Seeing that nothing could be done, and yet desiring of avoiding further trouble, the agent arrested three of the leading "Hostiles," and after warning the people that they must obey the orders of Washington, he went away, hoping that time would heal the breach. There were sullen mutterings when the agent took away his three prisoners, but no outward manifestations. In a few weeks they were released, with the hope that they had learned the folly of resistance, and would counsel no more opposition.

UNDERTAKER'S PROGRESS.

A Rubber Tired Carriage for Church Aisles Is One of the Newest Inventions.

Among the many new appliances of up-to-date undertakers is the casket carriage, upon which a burial casket may be moved up the aisle of a church. The latest form of casket carriage, upon which a patent was issued in the present year, is of lattice construction, of brass. It is supported upon six low rubber-tired wheels, three on a side. When not in use it can be closed up together, occupying a small space; when opened for use it is of ample size to bear a casket, which can be moved upon it securely, smoothly and noiselessly along the aisle, says the New York Sun.

It is not expected that the casket carriage will take the place of bearers in state and military and other funerals

INGRATITUDE AND MURDER.

How an Ingrate Laid the Plans Which Resulted in the Killing of His Friend.

A detective told a story a few evenings ago which illustrates the ingratitude of criminals. The ingrate, says a Chicago exchange, was one of the principals in the McGee murder, which was committed a little over a year ago. His name was W. J. Willows, a well appearing youth, but the man who deceived the aged creamery agent into the Indiana avenue apartment building where Jacks killed him. Willows had "been in trouble" before that, and the man "who came to the front" for him was the keeper of a lunch counter near the Criminal Court building. The man's wife had known Willows in his days of respectability in a small Michigan town. She urged her husband to do what he could for him, and, with money for at-

GEN. GALLIFFET, FRENCH WAR MINISTER.

This famous French soldier is an aristocrat by birth and inclination. He is also a stalwart upholder of the honor of the French army, and has consented to serve in the present cabinet merely to see that justice shall be done to the unfortunate and persecuted Dreyfus. Gen. Galliffet served as colonel through the Franco-German war, was afterward appointed a general of division, and still later a member of the national council of war. He holds the grand cross of the Legion of Honor, and has a European reputation as an authority on cavalry maneuvers. He was born in Paris in 1831, and entered the army in 1848.

in which bearers would naturally be employed, but it is found useful in other church funerals, and especially in churches having narrow aisles in which there might not be room for bearers to walk at the side of the casket.

The removal basket is a modern means of conveyance, used by undertakers for the removal of bodies from hospitals or hotels or other places where it might not be convenient or desirable to carry a cumbersome ice box. It is coffin-shaped in its general form, but with rounded outlines and a rounded top. It has a steel framework, upon which the basketwork of rattan, is woven. Stout wicker handles are woven into the sides. In such a basket, occupying comparatively little space and which may be conveniently handled, the body is removed to the undertaker's.

A Difference Only in Name. We call it ice cream. To the English it is known as cream ice. Just when or torney's fees and a few well placed words of commendation, Willows was helped to get out of the scrape. The lunch-counter man was a close personal friend of the old man McGee, and liked him much. He talked to Willows about him in their short acquaintanceship in the days of Willows' trouble, and the lunch-counter man told his acquaintance how much this friend had done for him, yet, while in jail, Willows met Jacks and the two of them formed the plan of robbery which led to McGee's murder. The lunch-counter man lost his best friend through a needless and useless murder and Willows earned a sentence in the penitentiary.

AUTOMOBILE WATER CARRIAGE.

An invention which makes the climax of pleasurable traveling possible is here reproduced from the Philadelphia Press. The picture shows an automobile party afloat. They have driven down to the water's edge, where the automobile catamaran awaited them, and then allowed the automobile to glide down the runways onto the floating section of the aquatic horseless carriage. The party then travels by water instead of on land by simply switching the motive power from the wheels to the propeller, which sends it forward on the water. The transfer from land to water takes less time than the changing of horses during the old coaching days.

where it was invented is the question many people have tried to solve. In the beginning of the century it was almost unknown in England, though well known in Naples and Sicily, where the cream was artfully made into copies of peaches, apples, apricots and such dainties, much as we have them to-day made in London.

Marriage Among Hottentots. The marriage customs of nations are quaint. A Hottentot widow marrying again has to cut off the joint of a finger, which she gives to her new husband. Each time she becomes a widow and marries again she has to sacrifice one finger-joint.—Iowa State Register.

WE CURE STRICTURE

Thousands of young and middle-aged men are troubled with this disease—many unconsciously. They may have a smarting sensation, small, twisting stream, sharp cutting pains at times, slight discharge, difficulty in commencing, weak organs, emissions, and all the symptoms of nervous debility—they have STRICTURE. Don't let doctors experiment on you, by cutting, stretching, or tearing you. This will not cure you, as it will return. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT absorbs the stricture tissue, hence removes the stricture permanently. It can never return. No pain, no suffering, no detention from business by our method. Those who are cured are strengthened. The nerves are invigorated, and the bliss of manhood returns.

WE CURE GLEET

Thousands of young and middle-aged men are having their sexual vigor and vitality continually sapped by this disease. They are frequently unconscious of the cause of these symptoms. General weakness, Unnatural Discharges, Piling Manhood, Nervousness, Poor Memory, Irritability, at times Smarting sensation, Sunk Eyes, with dark circles, Weak Back, General Depression, Lack of Ambition, Varicocele, Strunk Parts, etc. GLEET and STRICTURE may be cured. Don't consult family doctors, as they have no experience in these special diseases—don't allow Quacks to experiment on you. Consult specialists, who have made a life study of Diseases of Men and Women. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT will positively cure you. One thousand dollars for a case we accept for treatment and cure. Terms moderate for a cure.

A Convention Called.

Over seven hundred silver Democrats who are opposed to Mr. Goebel gathered at Lexington Wednesday to attend a conference regarding the advisability of putting out a new Democratic ticket. Eld. I. J. Spencer, of the Christian Church, invoked the divine blessing on the meeting, and Dr. Poyntz, of Madison, was elected Chairman, and W. H. Polk, of Lexington, was made Secretary.

Speeches were made by Hon. H. B. Kinsolving, of Montgomery, Hon. John Young Brown, of Louisville, and Hon. W. H. Sweeney, of Marion.

The resolutions adopted endorsed the Chicago platform and W. J. Bryan, denounced Mr. Goebel and Goebelism, and called for a convention to be held at Lexington on August 16th, to nominate a new ticket.

It is claimed that seventy-five of the 119 counties of the State were represented.

EXCURSION TO SEASHORE.

Midsummer Outing Trip to the Ocean via Pennsylvania Lines.

Persons in quest of a delightful haven at which to spend their summer vacation will be interested in the announcement that special excursions to the Seashore will be run over the Pennsylvania lines on Thursday, August 10th. Excursion tickets will be sold to ten of the most attractive seashore resorts on the Atlantic Coast, viz: Atlantic City, Cape May, Anglesea, Avalon, Holly Beach, Ocean City, Sea Isle City, Wildwood, New Jersey Rehoboth, Del., and Ocean City, Md.

The return limit will be fifteen days, including day of purchase, and will be ample for a delightful sojourn at the seaside. The extreme return limit will be by August 24, which will allow a week after returning home to prepare for school and other duties which begin with the opening of September.

The date of the excursion, August 10, is the most convenient for an outing. Business is quiet at this season, crops are gathered, and office, store and farm duties are not exciting. The thermometer usually reaches the highest point about this time. It will be a pleasing diversion to spend a week's vacation in the invigorating ocean breeze and experience the unlimited pleasures at the command of the summer idler by the sea.

For further information apply to ticket agents of Louisville & Nashville R. R. in Kentucky, who will sell excursion tickets in connection with this excursion, and will also furnish information about time of trains, etc. 25jst

"Oh! I begin to catch the idea. Pack the treasure inside of them at night and let it lie in those innocent-looking copra bags until you come back, eh? By Jove, old chap, that beats my ghost-haunted fissure all hollow. We'll call that settled. I guess we've covered everything likely to come up before you get back. Now, what day shall I look for you?"

"This is Sunday, the 19th. I'll get away from here by Tuesday morning at the latest—the 21st. Two weeks from that would be May 5—and four days more! You can look for the steamer off Orote Saturday morning, May 8, about sunrise. And be mighty careful you don't let anyone suspect she's coming before the middle of July; not even Senorita Dorotea. By the way, what are you going to do about that young lady?"

"For instance?"

"Oh, shucks, Harry! don't beat about the bush. If that girl continues to help you as she has, and keeps her mouth shut, she's a trump. Are you going to sail away and leave her at the end of the world with merely a conventional promise to call if you ever happen to be in Spain when she's living there?"

"No, I'm not, old one. When the Countess of Devon change owners, it is possible that Senorita Dorotea may have an interest in her. My mind has been pretty well occupied with this speculation of ours for the past two weeks, but—well—How's Gracia?"

"You'll see for yourself when we go below for breakfast. She thinks a good deal of Senor Enriqueito—tells me all the time that I don't half appreciate his friendship for me; so you're welcome to be as brotherly or cousinly as you please with her, especially as she's likely to sail with us on the Hong-Kong voyage."

"Really? Good! The girls ought to be very chummy together. But, I say, suppose anything should happen to me, or, through some unforeseen misfortune, I should lose the stuff? If you'd contracted to buy the ship, and support a wife in the bargain, you'd be in a good deal of a hole. After all, Dick, it's a frightful big gamble. And I don't know that you're justified in taking chances."

"Oh, bosh! I'd like to know what chances I've taken, or am likely to take, compared with yours. I've got $20,000 in gold, right here on this table, to do with as I see fit; I could get married and skip with even that much, couldn't I? And I'm likely to sit up nights worrying about a partner who went under water for me in mid-ocean, bottled up in a diving suit, who tumbled off a submarine precipice and managed to get on top again, who's been rowing about with ghosts and skeletons, and who, bit an island 450 miles away a pron, as you say, as if he'd lost to a cable; ain't I? Why, you've got more lives than a Kilkenny cat! I reckon I can stand the risk if you can."

"All, well! do our level best and hope everything'll come out all right. Of particularly interested in Yap, I start back in an hour or two and get down to business."

"You won't. It was pretty galling to make the island as running before the wind; but that's another matter. You'd make a reach of 400 miles north before you could put out to sea, and you couldn't go 48 without sleep. Of course, you'd get the sun and figure about where you were; but it might take a week, standing off and on; and we can't afford either the risk or the time. As it appears, there are two Pouynipetians aboard who want to reach Gama this voyage; but under the circumstances I'd run you up there regardless of consequences. I reckon that the smooth over the irregularities of a trip, and when we own the Countess I can do as I please with her."

Here the conversation was drowned the whistle, as we signaled for a boat off Touil bay; and by six bells the were anchored opposite Rul, inside the reefs. The cura Juan was almost paralyzed when I shook hands with him. How my presence on the steamer as possible, when he had last seen me rowing ashore at Apra, he simply could not understand; and when Diaz told him of my being picked up at sea, he crossed himself several times. That he natives sailed from one island to another, in the Carolines, he knew, but he trips were seldom long ones, and very rarely beyond sight of land.

CHAPTER XIII.

The next three days passed very pleasantly. The time had not yet arrived for explanations to either McPherson or Senorita Gracia; but we gave him 30 the doubloons as an evidence of the progress we were making, and discussed various plans for the future with him, on the way back to Guajan. We were all very anxious that the ship—rather, his eminence the bishop—should have no opportunity to come aboard at Apra. So, as the two passengers had but little luggage, it was arranged that we should be dropped in the proa somewhere off Cocos island, the steamer then heading for Manila without further loss of time. This arrangement was carried out, and the people at Agana had no suspicion of the Countess's visit until after we landed. The Pouynipetians, having been occupied with their own affairs, were not positive as to just when or how I had come aboard; so the impression got about that, having been blown out to sea, I had been picked up a long distance from land and conveyed to a safer neighborhood because the two strangers doing that way.

Inquiring for Sebastiano that evening, the gobernador told me he was suffering from a severe attack of gastric fever, which seemed likely to keep him in bed for some time; so I paid him a visit of condolence; it was the least I could do. Then I took advantage of his indisposition to get the treasure above water while safe from interruption.

First, I spent a couple of nights in removing the silver, already secured, from Tarofoto and stowing it away in the copra bags at Apra. Then I made regular trips every second day to the reef, returning with a long reach to the north-northwest which brought me into Apra bay about midnight, and working at the stowage until after three. This, with staying under water at the wreck, was pretty exhausting work, and but for the rest on the odd days I couldn't have kept it up. To have slept all day at the gobernador's house would have aroused comment very shortly, so I spent the time upon the water with Dorotea, napping in the bottom of the proa, while she fished and kept watch, as soon as we were well away from land.

Sebastiano's illness was the thickest streak of all my luck. I was beginning to feel careless because of our interrupted good fortune, when, returning from the last trip but one, a shadowy proa followed me into the bay. I held off toward the Agat road until two figures landed from her and walked into the copra shed; then I steered out to sea as fast as the wind would take me. Before rounding Punta Orote I thought of and discarded a dozen different plans. I had taken great pains to stow the treasure in the very center of the bags, so there was nothing but innocent copra for a thickness of several rows around and above it; and I knew if the strangers examined each bag as they went along they would scarcely reach the stuff before morning. It then occurred to me that Br'er Miguel's ghost wasn't earning its salt as guardian of the empty fissure at Tarofoto, and might be employed to advantage nearer home; so I sailed around after him as fast as possible. I had reached Apra a little early that night, so had time to return before daybreak; and, running ashore near the watering place, about three-quarters of a mile from the shed, I hurried toward it, holding my apparition before me.

The intruders had evidently investigated until they were tired out, and were sound asleep on top of the pile of bags. This was just the opportunity I wanted. Propping the figure up under the roof, about ten feet from them, I crawled out of sight on the opposite side and turned the ray from my lantern upon it. Then I dropped a piece of copra upon the stomach of the man nearest me. He was sleeping so soundly that I had to try a heavier piece, which startled him with a grunt of surprise and pain. In about three seconds his eye fell upon that faintly illuminated was figure, and, with a howl of terror that made my own nerves jump, he ran for his boat as if he were trying to break a record. His companion wasn't more than five seconds after him, and the two fought like madmen in their attempt to shove off and get away. To make the effect permanent, I grabbed my dummy, and, holding the lantern so that its rays would be reflected back upon it, glided swiftly after them. The horror of the thing had reduced their cries to inarticulate gasps, and they worked like demons to get out where the wind would fill their sail; so, as it was low tide, I waded after them, holding Br'er Miguel high enough to give him the appearance of walking upon the water.

When I finally waded back to shore, it was getting gray behind Tinquio, so I lost no time in stowing my friend under several layers of copra bags, where he was likely to be undisturbed, but where I could get him in short order if his services should be required again. Then, hurrying back to my proa, I dumped the cargo of speele overboard in four feet of water, where it could easily be found whenever there should be an opportunity for secreting it.

This affair so thoroughly awakened me to the danger of delay that I removed all the remaining treasure from the wreck in one big load, next trip. Standing for the last time in the lazaretto of Nuestra Senora de Sevilla, four fathoms under the Pacific, I felt as though I were saying good-by to an old friend; for I shall probably never see her again. There was something wonderful in the way she had guarded those millions for me all the years since they first disappeared under water, and I speculated a little as to whether strict honesty wouldn't require my searching for heirs of the original owners. This didn't trouble me very long, however. The risks Halstead and I had undergone, and the way we had worked the problem out to a successful result, seemed to give us a better claim upon the money than anyone else—even our fat and scheming friend Sebastiano.

So the days slipped along through April into May, while I rested and learned what it was to have a beautiful woman's personality creep into the deepest corners of my heart. Then one morning there came a cloud which threatened disaster to all our hopes; and but for Dorotea's position and ready wit this narrative would be merely one of fruitless adventure. A schooner came sailing into Apra—one of the island schooners which trade in coconuts, beche-de-mer, and other products—in search of water, poultry, and any cargo there might happen to be in the place. Noticing the bags of copra under the shed, her captain offered the harbor master a higher rate than that which obtained at Manila, and was told that, as the gobernador would undoubtedly be glad to sell at such a price, he might send ashore for it whenever he pleased. We were just coming in from a sail, and saw the schooner's men loading some of the bags into a jolly-boat as we skirted along outside of Apapa island. My face must have been absolutely colorless, for Dorotea laid her hand upon my arm and exclaimed:

"Madre de Dios, querido, what is it? que tiene V.?"

"No tengo nada; but look! They are taking away the copra in that schooner! The treasure! It is packed away in the bags. I never dreamed they would be disturbed until Halstead came for them. Oh, good Lord! how on earth can I stop them without giving the whole thing away?"

"Steer inside Apapa and land at the pier. I will stop it very quickly."

"But how? What can you say that will not arouse suspicion that there is something more valuable in the bags?"

"I cannot tell until I ask of the harbor master why he does permit it; then I will think of something. Does el Capitan Halstead know?"

"Of course he does, and expects to take them next trip."

"Then he would surely give more than other men for them?"

"Yes, yes. So will I. Only keep them where they are until he comes. I have it! Say that I spoke to you of a new chemical discovery which Halstead told me about—one which increases the value of copra, and which made him think of buying this lot on speculation. The treasure will need chemicals to get the corrosion off, anyway."

"Al, that will do. But you must not so alarmed appear, Enriqueito. Do you light one of your cigarros. Smoke as if it did make no difference to you. Leave the rest to me. Now—vivo—take the frown from your forehead. Come, there is el official—Senor Legaspe! Senor Legaspe, why do los hombres remove the copra?"

"El capitano gives two dollars more than the Manila rate, senorita. I knew el gobernador would accept such an offer, so I have given him permission to load."

"You have made a mistake, senor: the gobernador will be greatly displeased. The price of copra has risen very much, and the stranger capitano thinks we have not heard of it. Stop them instantly. I should regret to see you in trouble, Senor Legaspe."

"A thousand apologies, senorita; it shall be as you say. I knew nothing of the rise in values, and I but thought el gobernador would be pleased to sell. Hola, hombres! The copra is not for sale. Take those bags out of your boat and bring them back!"

The sailors looked at one another and then grumblingly began to do as they were told. The schooner's captain must have been watching through his glass, for inside of five minutes he dropped another boat into the water and came ashore as fast as his men could row. Hailing the harbor-master in bad Spanish when he was within earshot, he asked what the devil was the matter, and why his men were taking the stuff out of the jolly-boat. Legaspe was smarting a little under the sharp trick he thought the captain had played upon him, and was very short in his reply that "the gobernador would not sell, and that was all there about it."

"Who says he won't?" shouted the captain. "I've had my glass on the shore for half an hour, and no one has spoken to you but this yellow-faced chap and the girl yonder. He ain't the gobernador, I'll take my oath; and as for the girl, I don't allow no damned native women to interfere in my business."

It took all the self-control I had to keep from knocking the man down. His cool appropriation of our millions was a serious enough offense, without the gratuitous insult to the girl I intended to marry. I stepped in front of the fellow and looked him over. Then I said:

"This lady, sir, is Senorita de Gama, only daughter of his excellency, Col. De Gama, gobernador of the Ladrones. I supposed from your colors that you were a German, but I'm ashamed to see that you came from my own country. You will doubtless see fit to apologize to the lady at once."

"Waal, perhaps I war a leetle hasty. I dunno who you mought be, stranger, but yer kin tell thur ledly I didn't mean no offense; winmin's a good deal alike out here'n thur islands, an' I didn't judge her right, that's all. But about that thar coppa; I want a cargo of it, an' I'm willin' ter pay er far'r price. I'll give the gobernador four dollars more'n thur Manila rate, an' he kin pocket thur difference; but I don't cal'late ter leave Apra without it."

"I'm afraid you'll have to. I happen to know the stuff is worth a good deal more than the price you name; and, rather than let you have it, I'll buy it myself on speculation."

"Oh, ye will! What's ter purvent my layin' down my money here on thur sand an' tellin' my men ter put it aboard? I reckon you an' that dago ain't goin' ter stop me."

"That's where you make another mistake. Senor Legaspe sent for the gobernador an hour ago, and he'll be here with the officers of his staff very shortly. In the meantime, if you or your men lay a finger on those bags, I'll shoot you without a second's warning. (I was playing for millions, and I meant what I said.) More than that, as you have grossly insulted the senorita, I'll kill you if you stay another five minutes on shore."

DISRUPTED BY GOLF.

Peace of 250 Years Rudely Broken
by the Modern Game in a Yankee Town.

Not a hundred miles from Boston is an ancient town, embowered in elms like most New England villages, with two or three long streets on which old and new houses are set in democratic nearness to the roadway, though they have ample space between them and broad acres of garden and arable and pasture behind.

Scattered on side roads, running into the country, are other dwellings, some of venerable age, others in the freshness of smart white paint, but all simple, unpretentious and homelike, mostly surrounded by farms, neat and prosperous, raising the modest, hardy crops of the New England climate.

Small hills bound the horizon, lakes and the glittering curves of a river course diversify the landscape and, though the face of the countryside is rather smiling than picturesque, a few groves of large pines have been spared to set off the cheerful brilliancy of open fields and young coppices. Best of all, while every prospect pleases the work and life of the men who have inhabited it have left traditions and associations which enhance the quiet beauty of the rural town, or which until a few years ago were allowed to do so.

Names famous in pioneer days, in colonial times and the revolutionary period are to be read on the moldering gravestones in the cemeteries and survive in their descendants who still dwell there. And days more lately lived survived in the memories of philosophers and romancers whose fame is worldwide, while their simple neighborly personalities are the beloved and honored property of this favored spot.

A very few years ago one still lived who, having touched the skirts of the immortals, passed on the virtue he had received to visiting pilgrims, whom he loved to guide to the sacred shrines hallowed by virtue, patriotism, wisdom and genius. It was also his delight to gather his townsmen together in the enjoyment of simple, fraternal pleasures and to keep warm the strains of kindred blood and the honest pride in an honest race, in the unpretentious manner of the olden time. Brought up in the common schools, there was no distinction between the moderately rich and the son of labor. Democracy in its purest form survived without affectation, and all agreed in respecting only those accidents of genius which bore the hallmark of no human coinage, and claimed for itself only a chance of service, the opportunity to deliver the message with which it was intrusted. Into this modern Eden, happy in its isolated, uncontaminated purity for 250 years, though the fruit of the tree of knowledge had been gathered and eaten there in ample feasts, the serpent had never entered.

It came at last. It has destroyed the Eden, the men and women hide themselves from each other, and are ashamed—if they are not clothed in golf suits—all is dissension and discord. Sets have been formed, the golf club being the example, gay visitors from abroad have been drawn to join it, some of them have bought and built "villas" and have settled in the place.

The number of members is limited; some try to get in, some can't afford to do so, some who have not been asked loudly assert their disapproval of the innovation. The "golf set" attracts the younger people and houses are divided against themselves because the club members withhold themselves from the popular assemblies, the fairs, the lectures, the lawn parties, the church meetings of the old townpeople.

An exclusive dancing class in the winter draws sharp lines, a livery or two are set up, some men dress for dinner. In so small a place the growth of cliques means not indifference, but antagonisms in place of friendly interest and the pungent gossip which it creates. Merely wealthy folks come to spend the summer, attracted by a somewhat easier access to social recognition than in more definitely fashionable resorts. Circumstances do not permit the expansion of the old town; into one of these, an evolution which would at least have a definite value—it is only spoiled rusticity and half-baked gentility.

The shades of the departed worthies once so near and benignant have gone back glimmering and sighing to hades, while the maker of "society notes" does not think it worth while to come and dwell there. The poor old town has sold its soul and has not even got the mess of pottage!—Boston Globe.

Scurvy.

Prior to the present century scurvy was one of the most dreaded diseases on shipboard. Armies were decimated by it and navies rendered useless; sometimes half a ship's crew would be disabled by scurvy. Until the researches of physicians showed that it owed its origin to the lack of fresh vegetables, its ravages were frequent and widespread. In 1795 there was introduced into the British navy the admirable regulations of provisioning ships-of-war drawn up by Blane. Since then scurvy has almost disappeared. At the present time it is seen only in exceptional circumstances, such as have recently arisen in the Klondike. Even in the long, lonely voyages to the pole our means of furnishing the crews with vegetable food in various forms has prevented any outbreak of importance.—Philadelphia Medical Journal.

Spiders and the Diving Bell.

There is nothing new in the diving bell. Long before man thought he invented it the water spider knew all about it. The water spider crawls down a reed, dragging his diving bell with him, and anchors it under water on a level keel so that the air it contains keeps the water out.—N. Y. World.

Fine Export Cattle.

W. B. Griffith, the export cattle buyer of this city, bought in Clark county this week seventy-nine export cattle from Penn Taylor, forty-five from I. C. Van Meter, 104 from Harvey Rogers and sixty-nine from F. B. Wall. These cattle weighed from 1,400 to 1,550 pounds, and were bought at four and five cents per pound.

Last week Mr. Griffith bought sixty-eight export cattle from Horace Miller, of this city, and thirty-seven from J. C. Scobee and forty-nine from G. W. Rash, of Winchester, at from four and one-half to five cents. These cattle weighed from 1,350 to 1,425 pounds. The price was $4.50 to $5 per cwt.

Fined By Judge Webb.

Yesterday in Judge Webb's court "Black Ide" Smith and Maggie Jackson, both colored, were each fined $7.50 for fighting. The Smith girl gave her adversary a sound thrashing for an insult. Jacob Kimball was assessed $7.50 for being drunk.

No Advertisements In Postoffice.

THE Postmaster General has instructed Postmasters to strictly enforce the following section of the law: "Postmasters are strictly forbidden to place or permit to be placed upon the wall, or other wise, for public exhibition within Postoffice lobby thereto or on any portion of the Postoffice premises, business cards, circulars, placards, hand-bills or advertisements of private business."

NATURE is forgiving and will restore your diseased kidneys that will give you perfect health by using Dr. Sawyer's Ukatine. For sale by W. T. Brooks.

The Wages of Sin.

George Henry Allen plead guilty in Judge Parnell's court to stealing a lot of chickens from Mr. J. B. Kennedy one night last week, and was given thirty days at hard labor.

Will Warren and Mary Turpin, colored, were tried for fornication, and were dismissed with costs of $12 on condition that they married immediately, which they did.

Henry Myers and Lida White compromised a similar charge by getting married and paying $12 costs.

John Morris and Ida Chappell were each fined twenty dollars for fornication.

THEY were like iron—those children's Oxfords and slippers that go almost for the asking, at Davis Thompson & Isgrig's.

The Lexington Fair.

The Lexington Fair to be given next week by the Elks will have a fine program, including races by fast horses and guideless wonders, diving horses and elks, glass ball shooting by Dr. Carver, fine stock rings, and a Midway which will comprise the Hagenbeck animal show, the Streets of Cairo, Ye Olde Romany Rye Gypsy Camp, The Crystal Maze, the Moulin Rouge, Darkness and Dawn, ten theatres, German village, Grecian village, Millie Christine, the two-headed girl, and many other interesting features, not to mention the Floral Hall. The fair begins next Tuesday and continues till Saturday night.

CLAY'S SHOE STORE.

Elk News Notes.

County Clerk E. D. Paton and Dr. Philip Foley were inducted into the Paris Elk Lodge Tuesday night.

Paris will send large crowds to the Lexington Elk Fair next week, and of course the Paris Elks will be there in large numbers. The Elk Fair will be the biggest thing that ever happened in Lexington.

Mrs. Mary Crockett, of Sacramento, Cal., has given her elegant home in that city to the Sacramento Elk Lodge. The mansion and grounds are valued at $90,000.

The Louisville Elks have bought a new home for $17,000.

The Paris Lodge has decided to attend the Elk Fair in a body next Thursday, leaving Paris on the 11 a. m. train, over the L. & N. It is hoped that every Elk will make it convenient to attend.

The Yellow Fever Scare.

The presence of thirty-six cases of yellow fever at the Hampton Soldiers' Home, near Newport News, has caused several Parisians who intended starting next week for Old Point Comfort to postpone their visit indefinitely.

The presence at Newport News of Mrs. A. C. Adair and Misses Pattie and Mabel Letton, of this city, and Mrs. Robt. Woolnans, formerly Minnie Letton, who lives at Newport News, is causing their friends considerable uneasiness. The soldiers' home has been quarantined by all of the surrounding points.

Twenty-five hundred guests left Old Point Comfort Tuesday, and the balance are leaving as fast as they can get away.

Some Cool Reading.

Prof. Asa Martin, the Lexington weather prophet, makes the following predictions for the coming winter:

"As Christmas comes this year on Monday, we can look for perilous times, such as wars, famines, earthquakes, pestilences, terrific storms on sea and land, and great distress among nations.

"There will be during the winter twenty-five snows. The first one will fall November 11, 1899. There will be two ice spells, one in December, the other in January. Ice will be three and one-half inches and five inches thick. There will be ten days of zero weather. The coldest day will be 10 degrees below zero. The people can lay in coal and be ready, as I have warned you all in time."

SUMMER COMMENTS

Regarding Theatrical Folk and Other People Talked About.

Lewis Morrison will take a company of players to Japan and Australia.

The boys at Fishkill Landing are so slow that the girls have formed a Kissing Bug Club, and will catch several of the bugs and have them sting the boys, thereby inoculating them with a kissing desire.

Prof. E. H. Boone of the Boone-Yaki Company, will open his season Monday at Rushville, Ill., and has dates for a number of fairs in Illinois and Indiana. Prof. Boone tells the writer that later in the season he will come to Paris and put on a big show, the first night of the engagement being free.

Mr. James Lane Allen, whose "Choir Invisible" has passed the 200,000 mark, lives in New York most of the year. His home is one of the old-fashioned brownstone front mansions above Fort-second street, which was in the center of Gotham's "Four Hundred" a decade ago. Mr. Allen is a tall, spectacled man, retiring to a degree, and carries his avoidance of personal publicity to the point of eccentricity.

SUMMER WANDERERS.

Parisians In Search of Pleasure and Health at Summer Resorts.

Dr. John Bowen is at home from a sojourn at Blue Lick Springs.

The Paris camping party arrived home Wednesday from a delightful fortnight's outing at Olympian Springs.

Miss Louise Wheat, of Louisville, is spending the heated term at Bay View, Mich., with her grandmother, Mrs. O. W. Thomas.

Rev. F. W. Eberhardt, Messrs. M. A. Kenney, Ned Owings and John Williams are spending a few days at Olympian Springs.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Ferguson and Mrs. Chas. Webber left yesterday for Waukesha, Wisconsin, where they will spend six weeks or two months.

John Fox, Jr., the novelist, has developed into quite a baseball player. He is shortstop on the Big Stone Gap team, and is said to be one of the town's crack players.

A Pleasant Reunion.

The members of Company C, Ninth Confederate Cavalry, held an exceptionally pleasant reunion Wednesday at Wm. Tarr's beautiful deer park in honor of their comrade, Capt. John A. Miller, of Atlanta, who brought his family to Kentucky several weeks ago for a visit to relatives.

At twelve o'clock a typical Kentucky picnic dinner, which means a bountiful feast of everything that is good, was spread on an improvised table under the fine old forest trees. The scene was so pretty that Capt. Miller had the table photographed to take back to Atlanta as a souvenir.

The afternoon was spent in a reading of the history of the company, and in swapping army stories. The young people present, numbering about twenty, spent several pleasant hours with Misses Anna Garth Tarr and Mary Best Tarr, at their hospitable home, near the woodland.

Besides Capt. Miller and wife and their handsome daughters, Misses Edna, Mamie and Rinette, and son, Mr. Hal Miller, there were present a score or more of guests from Paris and Millersburg. The members of Company C, who were present were: John A. Miller, Atlanta; John E. Abraham, Louisville; John W. Boulden, Mayaville; C. H. Meng, G. T. Bradley, North Middletown; Russell Mann, A. T. Forsyth, J. E. Kern, J. E. Hedges, John T. Nesbitt, W. G. Holt, Pete Mernagh and Ben Dykes, of Paris; Jos. A. Miller and Jesse Payne, of Millersburg, and Henry S. Letton, of Carlisle.

HEMMED IN BY MUD.

Salutary Effect of Good Roads on the Home and Social Life of Rural Communities.

It is not uncommon for agricultural writers and lecturers who wish to make farmers contented with their lot to say that farmers have teams and their wives and families can go to town when they like and attend churches, societies, lectures, farmers' clubs, granges, history clubs and Chautauqua circles, for study and entertainment. This is all true to some extent, and is excellent—except during the two to four months of fall, winter and spring when a large part of the farmers living remote from any village are practically "mud-bound." There is something romantic, beautiful and poetic in being snow-bound in the way described by our beloved poet Whittier in his delightful poem; but there is neither beauty, poetry nor romance in being mud-bound. The first step in civilization is the step up and out of the mud. We know a town that has furnished its full share of inspiring agricultural literature for press and platform in which some of the families and neighbors even of those who furnish such literature are practically mud-bound a part of the year—cut off from church, lectures, social life, by very deep and very unpoetic mud.

At a certain farmers' club, recently, one member by previous assignment discussed the influence of electric roads upon the value of the farm and its products. After speaking of their influence on the cash values, he said in substance: "But there are other values than the cash ones. The farm's best products are its human ones, and whatever makes these human products more happy, intelligent and useful enhances the value of the farm and its products in the highest and best of all ways. Evening lectures and entertainments? Yes, but they close at ten or later and three miles of mud roads and cleaning the horses afterwards take all the fun out of it. Church? Why, I actually lose more religion going and coming than I get while I'm there! The only time my wife is discontented with farm life is when we're mud-bound. If we had an electric road past our farm life would be ideal." Another member thought really good gravel or stone pikes would solve the difficulty even better.

We know a town from which several hundred gallons of milk are shipped to the city daily the year round. Some of the milk is hauled three miles or more to the station, rain or shine, mud or dust, and as much more goes to cheese factories. There are beds of fairly good gravel in three parts of the township or just across the line. It is sandstone, quartz and granitic gravel with very little shale. It is not so good or durable as limestone gravel, but is better far than clay. In the township there are thousands of tons of "nigger-heads," that is, granite boulders brought by glacial action, from the size of your fist up to the size of a large hay-cock. They either obstruct farm work badly, or have been gathered into huge piles in fence corners and elsewhere, where they are useless and a nuisance. A good steam-powered crusher would make the very best "road metal" of them. Eight feet wide and eight inches deep of such broken granite on a properly graded roadbed, and covered with four inches of gravel well rounded up, and with proper drainage, would make solid roads the year round, and the roads would last for many years, provided very heavy loads were forbidden on them in wet times. Such roads would actually cost the farmers less, if the hauling of material were done by themselves, than it now costs them to wallow through the deep mud daily with their milk to station and to factory, several months each year, year after year, as they now do. And what an uplift to the intellectual and social life of the whole community! There are hundreds of such towns in Ohio and neighboring states, outside of the parts underlaid with limestone and in which limestone gravel abounds and in which the mud roads are already superseded by hundreds of miles of splendid stone and gravel pikes in each county. In such regions the worst features of the isolation of farm life are a thing of the past. They should be everywhere even if road metal must be shipped in by railway. Free rural mail delivery will go hand in hand with such roads in relieving our farms of their isolation the whole year round.—Ohio Farmer.

Remember Last Spring.

Bear in mind how the roads were last spring and fix them before another spring comes.

We would rather take a long rest at midday even if we have to start early and work late to make a full day.

FEEDING THE CALF.

How to Care for a Young Animal Destined to Be Raised for Breeding Purposes.

In the first place, take good care of the cow while she is carrying the calf and also when it comes. If we intend to feed the calf from the pail we do not allow the cow to lick it, but take it to a warm well-bedded box stall and rub it off and leave it for three or four hours to get hungry. We then take some milk from the cow (but do not milk her out thoroughly for 48 hours at least after calving, as this is a great safeguard against garget) and give it to the calf. We feed it about two quarts at first and gradually increase the quantity as it requires it. The calf should be fed three times a day the first week, but care should be taken not to overfeed, as scours when once started are very hard to stop. When the calf is two weeks old, says Farmers' Advocate, add a little warm milk to the mother's milk, and increase it so that at four weeks old it is taking skim milk entirely. To the skim milk add a little meal, corn meal, middlings, ground oil cake, in the order named in proportion to four, four, and two. It is not good to mix too much coarse meal, such as oat chop, in milk; put a tablespoonful or two in at first, and increase the quantity as the calf seems to relish it. When the calf is about three weeks old put some oat chop in a manger where it can get it; a very little at first and as it licks it up clean keep giving more, also let them have access to salt and fine, well-saved clover hay and pulped roots. Do not allow the feed to become stale before them, but keep the manger clean and put in fresh feed each time. There is nothing that helps them to eat better than teaching them to leave a clean plate. Be careful to feed regularly, both as regards time and quantity. Continue along these lines, changing the food at times to increase the appetite, and in summer when the flies are bad let them have a moderately dark, well-ventilated place to stay in through the day and a good pasture to feed in at night. When they are weaned from milk in the fall, a run on rape for a month or two puts their stomachs in fine shape to take hold of the coarser fodder in winter quarters. Calves fed in this way will generally grow well and have a good amount of flesh, which should be increased until they are finished. A great deal depends upon the attendant, whether he likes the calf and the work.

COST OF POOR ROADS.

Some Official Figures Which Speak Louder Than Yards of High-Flown Arguments.

France to-day is literally alive with automobiles, due to the fact that she has such fine roads everywhere, and one of the reasons why automobiles in America still cling to the large cities is the poor state of the roads in the rural districts. Hence the drivers of automobiles are joining the bicyclists in the fight for road improvement and it is pointed out that the farmer ought to make common cause with them. The figures cited are certainly very striking. As the result of an inquiry made in 1895 by the United States department of agriculture, replies were received from over 1,200 counties, giving the cost of hauling crops in various parts of the United States. The average load hauled was found to be 2,002 pounds; the average length of haul, 12 1/2 to 10 miles; the average cost of hauling a ton of crops to market was $3.02; while the average cost of hauling a ton for a distance of one mile was 25 cents. In order to compare the roads of the United States with those of Europe the bureau, through its consuls, made careful inquiry on the subject of cost of hauling in England, France, Belgium, Italy and Switzerland. The average cost of hauling one ton one mile was found to be in England 10 cents; in France, 10 cents; in Germany, 8 1/2 cents; Belgium, 9 1/2 cents; in Italy, 7 1/2 cents; and in Switzerland, from 6 to 8 cents. The average for all these European countries was 8 cents per ton per mile, United States.

BARN MILK HOUSE.

It Costs But Little to Build One, But Adds Greatly to the Comfort of the Dairyman.

The cut shows a labor-saving device—a building into which the milk can be carried (and the cream raised or "separated") directly from the cattle stalls. Though next door to the cows, no odor gets to the milk because the covered passage way has lattice-work sides, giving a free current of air. The milk room is partitioned off from the latticed walk. A door at the outer end can be reached by the creamery wagon, or the market wagon of the farm itself. Thus many steps are saved.—Farm Journal.

BARN MILK HOUSE.

FACTS FOR DAIRYMEN.

The first dairy commandment is, get good cows. Prize the calf with a good mother, but go miles for the one with good grandmothers also.

Cow keeping is no Klondike, but the dairy may be counted upon to do its full share in making the farm pay. Breed and select with the grain. Don't try to educate oats to produce walnuts, nor to induce beefy Herefords to rival the Jersey for cream and butter.—American Agriculturist.

OUR SPORTS IN HAVANA.

Cubans Readily Take to Horse Racing, Baseball, Golf and Other Amusements.

An army officer said to a Havana Herald reporter recently that, in his opinion, the successful meet of a jockey club, combined with the enthusiasm which exists for baseball, to be followed, he predicted, by golf, tends to prove that American amusements will take root in Cuba. Continuing, he said: "Heaven speed the day when the rock fights and the bullfights are superseded by contests improving to the moral and physical nature! The soldiers, sailors, marines and officers have given a practical demonstration of what they can do, and I trust that our insular and peninsular friends will now follow suit. Why should there not be foot races, jumping, leaping and vaulting? Perhaps some of our Cuban friends would like to play polo or ring-tossing. Their small, wiry ponies would give them an immense advantage in this respect over the large American horse."

"If Capt. Bellairs is as well posted in Tattersall's rules as we believe him to be, no doubt he could get up a series of exercises involving the Balaklava melees and pegging, participation in which would be healthful and instructive to those who witnessed."

"Capt. Lucien Young has shown himself such an admirable judge, toastmaster and citizen that we venture to suggest that he provide an aquatic contest between soldiers, Cubans, sailors and marines."

MAN FROM MEMPHIS.

His Opinion of Chicago Weather Was Formed from Seeing a Radiator Salesman.

A stranger in Chicago trudged along Dearborn street the other day with a yellow valise in one hand and a tattered and travel-worn copy of a Memphis paper in the other. At the corner of Lake street his gaze wandered to one of the big windows in the block, and he paused and sidled up to it. Before him was the salesroom of a steam radiator company, and various styles, shapes and sizes of radiators were strewn through the room at frequent intervals; there looked to be enough of them there to heat the Klondike and a portion of Siberia.

The stranger's eyes grew big and round as he put down his valise, tucked the paper into his breast pocket and clasped his hands behind his bottle-green frockcoat. His gaze traveled down one vista of radiators and up another. He tried to count them, and got lost at 240, because the ones at the far end began to jump up and down before his sight—or seemed to. Then he shook his head slowly and reached for his valise.

"I've heard tell that Chicago is a cold place in winter," he muttered as he went on, "but, dog my cats if I thought it was cold enuf to take 'bout 500 of them radiating things to heat a room no bigger'n Odd Fellows' hall at home."

FROM TRIFLING CAUSES.

Petty Quarrels Have Brought On Long and Bloody Conflicts in the Past.

Many wars have had trifling causes, says Leslie's Weekly. A dispatch altered in one or two points by Bismarck brought on the Franco-German conflict. Palmerston said facetiously that only three men in Europe ever knew what the Schleswig-Holstein troubles which led to the wars were about, and two of them died before the conflicts began, while he, the third man, had forgotten. A slighting reference by Frederick the Great of Prussia to Mme. Pompadour of France was said to have been one of the causes of the Seven Years' war, sometimes called the "war of the three petticoats" from the fact that the France of Pompadour and the Russia of Catherine II. joined the Austria of Maria Theresa against Frederick.

According to John Bright, England and her allies drifted into the Crimean war without realizing it until after they got in, and they did not know what they were fighting for even after they started; while it is certain that everything which is supposed to have been fixed by that results of a quarter of a century of war beginning with the commencement of the French revolution and ending with Waterloo "pleased nobody and settled nothing," according to Sheridan. The average person who lived in those days knew as little about the causes of the slaughter as old Kaspar did about the battle of Blenheim when questioned by little Peterkin.

SAMOAN LIFE.

When Not at War They Have a Very Easy and Agreeable Time.

When native Samoans are not at war they seem to foreigners to have a very easy and agreeable life. There is never very much to do, and what there is is not arduous or tiring. The old women, for instance, braid mats or sit upon the rocks and beat and strip the bark for making tapa, the native cloth. The men spend much of their time in making fishing nets and tackle.

In spite of the simplicity of the national attire, the Samoans are rather vain, and spend a good deal of time in beautifying themselves. The hair is often plastered with white lime, giving it, when dry, the effect of a white wig. The lime is washed off by night. The result is a gradual change in the color of the hair from a red to a bright yellow. Apart from this strange fancy, the Samoans quite share the Europeans' ideas in regard to beauty. They particularly admire tall persons.

A fad of the young men of Samoa is to wear the name of his sweetheart tattooed upon the forearm. As the Samoan wears no sleeves this ornament is always visible, and he is very proud of it, which is easily understood, as the young lady herself always does the tattooing, it being impossible to intrust to a professional workman a task so full of sentiment.

MODERN RUSSIA.

The Land Still Feels the Autocratic Influence of Peter the Great.

All nations feel more or less the original impetus given them by one great man, but probably none so much as modern Russia. It may almost be said to have been the creation of one man, Peter the Great, and the features he impressed upon the Russian state are still distinctly visible. A mass of barbarism was transformed by him into a powerful and active member of the family of civilized nations. He gave to his subjects an army, a navy and an educational system. Commerce with foreign countries, previously forbidden, he warmly encouraged. The autocrat transferred his capital to the shores of the Baltic, and built the great city which bears his name to be the open door to the civilization of the western world. He introduced the arts, the literature, the sciences and the economic theories of the most advanced nations. Russia at the present day is actuated by the ideas of the great czar. In its restless ambition, its subtle and unscrupulous policy, its vanity of culture, scarcely hiding the ferocity of the barbarian, its intolerance of popular liberty and its real solicitude for the material welfare of the people, the Russia of to-day is the Russia of Peter the Great.

Rich—Yet Starving.
Doctors frequently have very wealthy patients who are starving to death. They have money to buy food, but their stomach has not the strength to digest it. It lies there a heavy fermented mass, the sole cause of dyspepsia, nervousness and biliousness. The surest remedy to cure a weak stomach is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It will restore vigor to the digestive organs. Nothing is "just as good." See that a private Revenue Stamp covers the neck of the bottle.

An Excellent Combination.

The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinal laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package.

Eczema!
The Only Cure.

Eczema is more than a skin disease, and no skin remedies can cure it. The doctors are unable to effect a cure, and their mineral mixtures are damaging to the most powerful constitution. The whole trouble is in the blood, and Swift's Specific is the only remedy which can reach such deep-seated blood diseases.

Eczema broke out on my daughter, and continued to spread until her head was entirely covered. She was treated by several good doctors, but grew worse, and the dreadful disease spread to her face. She was taken to two celebrated health springs, but received no benefit. Many patent medicines were taken, but without result, until we decided to try S. S. S., and by the time the first bottle was finished, her head began to heal. A dozen bottles cured her completely and left her skin perfectly smooth. She is now sixteen years old, and has a magnificent growth of hair. Not a sign of the dreadful disease has ever returned.

H. T. SHARP,
2704 Lucas Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

Don't expect local applications of soaps and salves to cure Eczema. They reach only the surface, while the disease comes from within. Swift's Specific

S.S.S. For The Blood

is the only cure and will reach the most obstinate case. It is far ahead of all similar remedies, because it cures cases which are beyond their reach. S. S. S. is purely vegetable, and is the only blood remedy guaranteed to contain no potash, mercury or other mineral.

THE FACE ON THE CANVAS.

It was at the matinee. The curtain had fallen upon a one act farce and the house was darkened for the biograph.

Two girls sat in the left hand box, chatting together. Their faces shone whitely in the half light. The lines of their profiles were so delicately fine that many turned to look at them.

"Last night," Mabel was saying, "I dreamed of muddy water. I kept dreaming of it all night long. It came on and on, rolling up to my very feet. The waves were big, turbulent, threatening. I was afraid."

"A sign of trouble," murmured Florence, "that is, unless it cleared. Did it clear?"

Mabel frowned. She closed her fan and tapped it impatiently against the palm of her other hand.

"No, it didn't," she answered. "But what difference did that make?"

"When did you hear from Arthur?"

Arthur was Mabel's soldier sweetheart.

"That is the trouble," sighed Mabel. "I haven't heard from him for ages, but I am expecting him home daily. His regiment came last week, but he was not with it. Perhaps he stopped somewhere to rest. It is a wonder they didn't all die down there in that oven of a place."

Then under her breath she added, "I hate that dream of muddy water."

"I thought you didn't believe in dreams," exclaimed Florence.

"I don't, but"

She was interrupted by the appearance of "Me and Jack" upon the canvas.

There was a ripple of subdued laughter as the little girl fell from the ropes into the water, the dog swimming coolly off and leaving her there.

Picture after picture was then prepared. There was the naval parade, the warships passing up the Hudson, the yachts skimming swiftly in front of them, partially obstructing the view of the sailors, who stood like white statues along their decks; next Hobson walked leisurely down the deck of a little cruiser;
then a review of the troops at Tampa was announced.

"Perhaps it is Arthur's regiment that is to be reviewed!" whispered Mabel, clasping her hands ecstatically together.

"Oh, I hope so!"

There was a drumbeat, and, before a dim vista of white tents, the troops passed in review.

"Their faces look sad," said Florence,
"and they walk as if they were tired to death."

A white dog, the mascot of the regiment, occupied the center of the canvas for a second, a soldier following.

A piece of paper floated along behind them, a row of six stalwart men.

The man in front suddenly turned his face toward the audience. He looked straight at Mabel. His eyes were hollow and sad. Intense weariness was stamped upon every line of his gaunt features.

Mabel leaned eagerly forward. She had held of Florence's arm.

"Look, Florence!" she gasped. "Look,
it is Arthur!"

In a moment the face was gone from the canvas, others had taken its place, the drum ceased to beat, the review was over, and the canvas was dark again.

Mabel was white to the lips. She har-riedly gathered up her belongings, her fan, her handkerchief, her opera glasses.

"What are you about?" asked Florence. "The thing is not half over."

"I can't help it," said Mabel. "I must go now. The heat in here is stifling. I can't stand it. I must have the fresh air."

Outside she trembled so that Florence took her arm.

"If I were you," she said, "I should be glad that I saw him. Why do you worry so?"

"His eyes were hollow and sad," stampered Mabel, "and his cheeks were thin.
He looked so tired—so dead tired. Oh,
Florence, suppose he is very ill; suppose—oh, remember my dream!"

Florence affected an overwhelming surprise.

"I thought you didn't believe in dreams?" said she.

"I don't; I don't. Who but an idiot would believe in such rank foolishness, but you can't help thinking!"

"Oh, yes, you can! Come, we will take this car, and I will see you home myself. Don't be silly!"

By the time they reached the house
Florence had coaxed the girl into something like her old gaiety. She laughed at a bit of her nonsense as they ran up the steps together.

They passed into the hall. On a little table reserved for cards lay a letter.

Mabel took it up and held it between her forefinger and thumb. It was old and yellow. A dozen postmarks disfigured the face of it, upon which there was no stamp.

Florence took it from her.

"I will open it for you," she said.

Mabel sank upon her knees on the carpet. She remained there trembling, her white face clasped between her slender,
bloodless fingers.

She saw once more the tired face on the canvas, the weary limbs dragging laggingly along, the hollow eyes peering straight into hers in all the sadness of a last farewell.

For before Florence could read the contents of the letter her heart had guessed the truth.—Criterion.
